CLIF WHITE WINS IT ALL

Reston, VA (January 7, 2016) — Project Manager Clif White's Winter is Coming squad captured the 2nd Annual Orr Fantasy Football (OFF) crown with a 173 to 141 victory over Lizz Adam's Twinkle Toes. "No sense dancing around it, Clif just had a stronger team," said Adams. For the second straight year, the OFF league champion was a team that came from the middle of the pack, and got hot during the playoffs. "I draft for weeks 14-16," claims White, who was aided by a proprietary, patent pending algorithm that projects fantasy football scores to within a sixteenth of a point. White added three tons of cooling to his home to run the data center he installed in his basement to run the calculations. "By linking multiple servers together and pulling resources from the cloud, I'm able to process around 45,000 yottabytes per second," says White. "This nearly allows me to see the future."

"Clif is a bright, young mind and it is an honor to work with him every day," commented Scott Siegel, President of Orr. "Once he was able to get his servers up and running, the rest of the teams didn't have a chance." The competition committee is evaluating proposals from disgruntled teams to ban the use of custom made data centers going forward.
